"IGI helped myself and one of my female staff streamline our professional appearance and eliminate distractive elements. It was fantastic to work with Jon Michail who was honest, critical, and yet kind. His words stay with me every time I give a public appearance – which is 50 to 100 times a year!."

"Over the years I have sought professional help of various persuasions including media management, presentation skills, and image consulting. Jon Michail transformed me in the area of supporting and empowering of people to understand the "street smarts" behind the reason for and the power behind personal brand and perception management. That changes conditioned mind has helped me stand out from all my colleagues."

Neale Daniher

"Excellent presentation, very insightful and entertaining."

"As a company with over $200m in revenue and 1200 employees it became increasingly difficult to get the image message through to all our employees. I sought help from image consultants and over the years several were engaged but whilst they may have known their stuff, their ability to influence the employees to any lasting degree was very limited if it was there at all. It is in this area of helping people to understand the reason for and the power behind "image", thereby permanently changing entrenched mind sets, that stands Jon Michail apart from his peers."
